GRAND OPENING COVERAGE AND PUBLIC ART

The State Library, Archives and Alaska State Museum held our grand opening in our amazing new Andrew P. Kashevaroff Building on 6/6/2016. This week we offer you a roundup of grand opening coverage and a standing invitation to visit our building the next time you're in Juneau:

- Hundred-year 'treasure' of Alaska history and culture opens in Juneau (KTOO, 6/7/2016)
- Grand SLAM: New state museum opens (Juneau Empire 6/6/2016)
- Editing labels for new state museum meant finding Alaska's voice (Alaska Dispatch News, 6/6/2016)

Our building features a number of public art projects either created or refreshed as a result of the Percent for Art requirement. Claire Imamura of the State Library provided pictures and background on these art pieces in the 6/10/2016 blog post, Public Art in the Andrew P. Kashevaroff State Library, Archives, and Museum.

BARANOV MUSEUM POSTS STUDENT FISHSTORY FILMS

The Baranov Museum recently featured a premier of student films in the Fishstory Film Festival:

“6th - 12th grade Kodiak students in the Summer History and Film Class interviewed individuals in our community, conducted research, and shot, directed and edited their own films on the science and history of Kodiak’s fishing industry.”

We are fortunate that the Baranov Museum posted these short films onto YouTube:

CROWDSOURCING HUMANITES: MEASURING THE ANZACS

Cultural institutions around the world are harnessing the power of crowds to help transcribe and classify their collections. An example of this is:

Measuring the ANZACs - <https://www.measuringtheanzacs.org>

Do your part to help transcribe first-hand accounts of New Zealanders from the Australian and New Zealand Army Corps circa World War I.

Think something like this built around your collection would be helpful? Zooniverse is letting anyone build similar projects. See <https://www.zooniverse.org/lab> for details.
